

THE NETHERLANDS' NEW "CHRISTIAN" ADMINISTRATION: A BLESSING?

by messian dread, february 2007

WWW, FEBRUARY 2007 - After a few months of negotiating, it seems like a new administration is formed in the Netherlands and it is a coalition of the "Christian Union", the "Christian Democrats" and the Dutch equivalent of Tony Blair's Labour Party, the "Partij van de Arbeid".

After years of a very right wing rule, wherein the Netherlands became one of America's most cooperative slaves while refugees were treated as if they were not human, we have now entered a new phase in the Netherlands.

The Netherlands is a small country (16 million people), but fortunately our administrations are always a coalition of two or more parties. Three party-administrations have been functioning over here for well over ten years.

One party had been continually in the administration, the liberal "VVD". In America they would call them "conservatives", by the way. But in the last elections of November, the VVD lost too much seats in the 150-seat parliament. The other two parties in the administration, the antichristian party "D'66" and the "Christian democrats", lost as well.

The left wing Socialist Party gained a historical victory: they went from 9 to 25 seats. The Labour party, usually mistaken for a left wing party, lost. The Christian Union won seats, too...

To make a long story short, the Christian Democrats, the Christian union and the Labour party have now formed a new administration. So we have an administration of losers.

The Christian Union is the most striking element in the new administration. They have been vocal in that they stood for a "Social Christianity", but then this is not so social for the people in Iraq and Afghanistan.

All three parties namely approve of the Netherlands doing their neo-colonialist work for the New World Order of that other so-called Christian, the Satanist George W. Bush and his "born again" friends. In spite of strong opposition in the Netherlands, in spite of what they promised, the Labour Party has agreed that there will be no investigation into the lies and deception that made the Netherlands follow the Bushites in their quest for world domination.

The "Christian Union" is known to be against abortion and against euthanasia, in other words they are so-called "pro-life". But apparently, life in Afghanistan doesn't count...

It couldn't be different either: the top negotiator for the Christian Democrats, Maxime Verhagen, was an attendee of the 2006 Bilderberg conference. And as always with the Bilderbergers: they seem to appoint administrations long before they are "elected". Maxime Verhagen obviously is the new minister of foreign affairs...

After the brutal reign of the far right, have we now entered a phase wherein the Christian Faith is abused to downpress the people of the world even further? It surely seems like it.

We don't really feel the blessings over ones who claim to be "pro life" but really are pro war, of ones claiming to be Christian but in the same time attend the Bilderberg Group, of the so-called "left wing" labour that only has power-hungry opportunists in their membership roll.

It's too soon to say anything about the way the new administration will function. But from what the signs seem to say, everyone can read that it's going to be a tough time for Christians who know that Jesus said: "My Kingdom Is Not Of This World".

Written for the Center for Research on Christianity, <http://crc.dubroom.org> february 2007